Which Would Give Brady and Lewis a Voice Here If the Judge Wins Out

By HARVEY E. RHODES

That Thomas H. Owen, former chief justice of the state supreme court and democratic candidate for governor, is greatly pleased with the candidacy and strength of Jack Walton, was plainly shown during Owen's talk to about 100 local democrats in a "mass meeting" at the courthouse last night.

Virtually all of his address was devoted to an attempt to discredit Walton and the former-labor reconstruction party which elected him.

Only a small portion of the talk was directed against H. H. Wilson, the third democratic candidate. Owen frequently compared himself favorably to Walton, pointing out that Walton's election would be disastrous to Oklahoma. He expressed apprehension over Walton's apparent strength in numerous counties, and expressed the hope that Tulsa county will vote for Owen and help to offset the effect of the heavy Walton vote in those other counties.

Went to Give Dennis a Job.
Owen emphatically denied all reports that he will, if elected, reappoint Fred Dennis as state bank commissioner.

Not once did the banker-candidate refer to the present democratic administration in his administration. He either commended or condemned. The name of Governor Robertson was not even mentioned.

With subtle flattery and sweet-sounding campaign promises, Owen appealed at length for the support of women. He even promised that women shall be placed on all state boards and commissions if he is elected. He promised he is in favor of women in office, and then tried to justify his failure to favor the granting of suffrage to them by explaining that he wanted this question decided by the states and not by the federal government.

Let Friends Pick Officials

Owen openly admitted that if he runs a successful race he will leave the matter of appointments in the hands of his friends in each community, depending on these friends to furnish him the names of "honest and competent" democrats to participate in his administration. Apparently his selections in Tulsa county would be largely governed by the wishes of S. R. Lewis and Tate Brady, as they are among his most ardent supporters.

Walton was likened by Owen to a patent medicine fakir who tours the country "with a jazz band and a band picker" trying to sell his "dope" to credulous purchasers.

"If I am elected I expect to pay some attention to eradicating the boll weevil from Oklahoma," Owen declared. "Don't misunderstand me—I don't say that if I am elected the boll weevil will disappear. If Walton ever discovers what the boll weevil is, he will immediately promise to exterminate it as soon as he is elected."

Balm for Sore Spots

After subjecting the former-labor reconstruction league to a severe tongue-lashing, Owen attempted to lead alive over the wounded feelings of those who belong to that organization by explaining that he would have you understand that I have no ill will toward the individual members of the league; I think they are misguided and misinformed, but I do not question their sincerity.

Some who heard his address pointed out afterward that Owen's ability to realize an organization composed of individuals, and that in criticizing the organization he criticizes those individuals that compose it, regardless of his campaign explanations to the contrary.

Arbuckle Broke, Forced to Sell Expensive Cars

Only One of Four Machines Left and It Will Go to the Highest Bidder

LOS ANGELES, June 15.—Broken in financial and popularity because his films are banned from the American motion picture screen as an aftermath of the death of Virginia Rippie in San Francisco last September, despite the fact that he was declared not guilty by a jury, Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle today announced that he is selling his four expensive automobiles in San Francisco, he has been forced to sell his pretentious home in West Adams street and three of his four expensive automobiles.

The remaining automobile, his custom-built car that cost him $25,000, he said today, "is being held for the highest bidder."

"In buying my pictures," Arbuckle said today, "Mr. Will Hays said he would make a thorough investigation of my case and then render a decision as to whether or not I might have a chance to return to the screen. So I'm just waiting."

Arbuckle has had but one check for his services since his acquittal, one from Buster Keaton for a scenario Arbuckle wrote. Keaton is now making the production.

The former comedian admitted he has had several offers to direct pictures but has refused them in view of the fact that he believes Hays will reinstate him on the screen.

TRAVELING MEN STILL MISSING

Koden and Wolfe Got Only Block From Station Witnesses Say

WOMAN LEAVES TOWN

Everything Indicates That Alleged Kidnapers Are Victims of Mob

Although reports that Jack Wolfe and J. T. Koden, Chicago traveling salesmen, were spirited away from several cars of unmasked men soon after their dismissal by the police at 11 o'clock Wednesday night, could not be verified at a late hour Thursday, neither of the men had returned to their room at Hotel Tulsa, where their extensive baggage is stored.

The men were dismissed when the husband of Mrs. Maxine Curtis failed to appear to press kidnapping charges against them and after Mrs. Curtis had failed to file them herself and left for Avoca, where her husband is employed in the oil fields.

Reports of pedestrians who said they witnessed the alleged "kidnaping" of the two men were that they had reached Second and Main, a half block from the police station, when several cars of unmasked men stopped, several men jumped out, a shot was fired and the cars sped south on Main.

Rumors were abroad at a late hour Wednesday night that a procession of at least 15 cars had proceeded out on Terrace drive, south and east to the Hickory mines and thence south on the Broken Arrow paved highway.

After the alleged kidnapping of the men it said to have occurred, police received a call that there was shooting on Terrace drive, along Fifteenth street. Three carloads of police rushed out, but could find no trace of trouble. The shooting has been linked by some with the alleged kidnapping.

Authorities at Hotel Tulsa said that the room which had been engaged by the two men, had not been paid for and that the baggage was being held until such payment was made. The men did not put in their appearance Thursday. Authorities did not say what step would be taken if the men should not return. That something evidently happened to the two men is pointed out by the police who said that since the men would have gone to their room at the hotel sometime during the night, they had been in the hotel. They had been unaccompanied, some violence must have befallen them. The police however said they had received no report of the abduction of the men nor did they have any clue as to their whereabouts. The sheriff's office stated they were likewise in the dark concerning the affair.

The two men were arrested by the police at the hotel after it is alleged they forced Mrs. Curtis, a mother of a 2-year-old child, at the point of a gun to get off a Frisco train at the Tulsa depot while en route to Claremore and compelled her to go to Hotel Tulsa. No violence was done here, she stated, she stated to the police.

VOICES MAPPED RAILROAD

Advised Against Galveston
Terminal Just Before Tropic Storm Destroyed City

By the Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 15.—That every mile of the 3,000 miles of railroads he has built has been constructed by following the advice of spirits and that he changed the direction of the Kansas City Southern and built his terminal at Port Arthur, Texas, rather than Galveston, which the spirits warned him to avoid because of coming disaster, is the assertion of Arthur E. Stilwell, who says he has been president of many railroads and was president for seven years of the National Surety Co. Making his revelations last night at a meeting of spiritualists, he said that he had not revealed his relations with the spirit world because he did not want "people to think him a nut."

"I have built more than 3,000 miles of railroads," he said, "and every mile of them was determined by spirits who came to me in my dreams and told me what to do. When I was building the Kansas City Southern, I was warned not to build the terminal at Galveston, by spirits, because it would lead to disaster. They told me to terminate it at Lake Sabine where I built the terminal of Port Arthur. Four days after the terminal was completed the tropical wave wiped out Galveston."

KANSAS CITY, June 15.—Arthur E. Stilwell, promoter, railroad builder and former president, both of the Kansas City Southern and the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient railroads, came to Kansas City in 1888 from Chicago in response to a spirit voice, according to a statement made to reporters here.

Spirit Told Him to Go West

One night as he lay in bed, Mr. Stilwell said the voice said to him, "Go west, go to Kansas City, the city of bluffs. There your life will meet with a larger and fuller measure of success."

Stilwell also founded a successful insurance business and followed the advice. He was responsible for the building of a belt railway here, for the two railways mentioned, and was head of two trust companies.

Not until 1920, when his active railroad connections had been terminated, did Mr. Stilwell make public his belief in spiritualism. He referred to the unseen beings, which he said, counseled him in business matters and in personal affairs, as his "brownies."

Advised Since Childhood.
"From childhood," Mr. Stilwell said, "I did not attempt to analyze the magnitude of the phenomena, I simply accepted the advice given."

"It seems to me my life has been like a human puppet, moved by the hand of destiny."

Dreams showed him, Stilwell said, an accurate map of the country around Lakes Sabine and Port Arthur, Texas, although he had never seen it. He found the country like what his dreams had shown. For years, Stilwell said, he told only his wife and a few intimate friends of his belief in spiritualism.

WARD UNDER ARREST

Son of Millionaire Banker Indicted for Death of Ex-Marine—Held
Without Bail

WHITE PLAINS, N. J., June 15.—Walter S. Ward, son of the millionaire banker, was indicted in the supreme court here this afternoon for the death of a man named John Joseph Morschauer, held without bail until tomorrow morning.

Ward was indicted in connection with the slaying of Clarence Peters, ex-marine, was arrested in the office of his attorney in New York City.

All the authorities concerned made the utmost mystery of the indictment and it could not be immediately learned what the count against Ward was—whether murder in the first or second degree, or merely manslaughter.

Nevertheless, Sheriff Werner of West Chester county immediately sent his deputies from White Plains to New Rochelle to arrest young Ward and take him to the supreme court to plead before Justice Joseph Morschauer.

Process Found to 'De-Ink' And Reuse Old Newsprint To Result in Huge Saving

Cheapness of New Method Assures That Much of 2,200,000 Pounds of Paper Used Annually by Newspapers Will Be Salvaged and Virgin Color Restored.

MADISON, Wis., June 15.—A process to take the ink from old newspapers so that they can again be used for printing purposes has just been developed by the United States forest products laboratory here, according to announcement today. Already one mill under commercial conditions has deinked 1,500 tons of old newspapers, which were then remade into newsprint of the highest quality, strength and color and accepted by publishers as standard.

The success of this experiment solves a paper salvage problem that was first considered by Danish paper makers in 1905. It affords a means of saving much of the waste and so decreasing the demands on the diminishing American forests for wood from which the paper is made.

The process, a clay-like substance formed from waste ash and found largely in Wyoming, is used in the deinking process. It has a faculty of dissolving the ink and leaving the paper in a perfectly clear condition.

Because of the cheapness of the new process, laboratory officials believe that much of the 2,200,000 tons of newsprint annually used can now be salvaged.

The discovery of the process for removing ink from print paper was made by Sidney H. Wells, attached to the forest products laboratory, who spent 15 months in experimenting with various processes to remove ink which might be used in dissolving ink.

Following experiments with benzene which proved satisfactory with small amounts of paper at the laboratory, the process was taken to a paper mill, where similar good results were obtained.

Large amounts of the best quality clay make developing of paper-reclaiming plants very probable, according to laboratory officials.

One difficulty was encountered in finding a process which would provide a means of meeting color requirements of publishers, which are said to be severe. Any plan to remove ink which would not completely take away any trace of color would be unsatisfactory, according to Mr. Wells. The new process is said to meet this difficulty.

In the large metropolitan centers probably 2,500 tons of print paper is collected each day, which would furnish a very large part of the daily consumption of about 700,000 tons, Mr. Wells said, emphasizing that the source of the old newsprint is at the point at which the new paper was consumed and offers a means of saving of light, an important cost in the industry.

CONSTITUTION OF ERIN PUBLISHED

So Worded That It Cannot Be Contradictory to Anglo-Irish Pact

ALL MUST TAKE OATH

Parliament of Irish State Is Authorized to Raise and Maintain Armed Force

LONDON, June 15.—The new Irish constitution was made public tonight. It is a lengthy document of more than 15,000 words, covering the whole range of British-Irish relations.

It stipulates that if any of its provisions or any law made under the constitution is in any respect repugnant to any of the provisions of the Anglo-Irish treaty, it shall, to the extent only of such repugnance to the treaty, be absolutely void and inoperative. The constitution provides for universal adult suffrage, including women who have reached the age of 21 years.

Oath of Allegiance

The oath of allegiance is provided under article 17 of the constitution. "I do solemnly swear true faith and allegiance to the constitution of the Irish Free State as by law established, that I am faithful to his majesty King George V and his heirs and successors by law and in virtue of the common citizenship of Ireland and Great Britain and his Majesty the King."

The constitution provides that the oath of allegiance shall be taken and subscribed by every member of parliament of the Irish Free State, before taking his seat there. The oath shall be taken and subscribed by every person who is appointed to any office or position of honor or trust in the state or in any department of the state, before entering upon his duties.

Article 45 of the new Irish constitution gives the parliament of the Irish Free State exclusive right to regulate the raising and maintenance of such armed forces as are mentioned in the Anglo-Irish treaty, and such forces shall be subject to the control of the parliament.

Article 48 provides that "except in case of actual invasion the Irish Free State shall not be committed to active participation in any war without the assent of the free state parliament."

SEIZE TWO WHISKY STILL

Okfuskee County Deputies Aid U. S.
Enforcement Officers on R. S.

OKEMAH, June 15.—A delegation of county sheriffs accompanied Charles Buzel, federal enforcement officer, into Fortsonville county to search for whisky stills. Near the Kokuk Falls church they arrested Bill Luper, upon whose advice they found the stills. One of the stills was a 30 gallon all-copper affair and the other a 20 gallon tin outfit. A barrel of mash and some whisky was found and destroyed.

Luper was turned over to the Fortsonville county officers. Luper was at one time a preacher who went about over the country preaching the doctrine of a return to the style of dress affected by Adam and Eve before they sampled the apple.

One hundred and fifty children in the Arden colony were rescued from the burning buildings and housed in a hotel outside the fire area. The orphanage was destroyed.

Lasker Calls on Harding

WASHINGTON, June 15.—A. D. Lasker, chairman of the United States shipping board, was a luncheon guest of President and Mrs. Harding at the White House today. It was understood the sale of liquor aboard United States vessels was discussed between the president and Lasker.

Indications were given at the treasury that attorney-general would be asked in the near future to rule on the question of whether ships on the American flag beyond the three-mile territorial limits of the United States were subject to the prohibition amendment and the Volstead act. Acting Attorney-General Frierson of the Wilson administration held that they are, but Chairman Lasker of the shipping board in justifying the present sale of liquor on American ships has said that the board's count holds the opposite of the Frierson ruling.

Amendment Presented

Another definite move was made through presentation to the house merchant marine committee considering the pending merchant marine ship subsidy bill of an amendment by Representative Bankhead, democrat, Alabama, under which government aid would be denied to any American ship paying liquor aboard either in storage, for sale, or for any other disposition. The committee did not act on the amendment today and members declined to state how they regarded it. Soon after representative Bankhead presented his amendment, the house committee on commerce, under which the bill is pending, held a hearing on the amendment.

Senator McCumber said he would make his motion with full knowledge of President Harding's views that the bonus bill should be delayed until after disposal of the tariff measure and also regardless of what course the republican conference should take.

President Harding, in his talk with Senator Lodge, was said to have directed his opinion that the tariff bill should be pressed.

Senator McCumber's plan to move the consideration of the bonus bill next Monday was said to inspire a battle royal in the senate. Republican leaders, favoring precedence, were said to be confident that a majority of the party conference would vote to give the tariff bill right-of-way over the bonus measure.

Predictions were also made that the president would again intervene actively in the bonus controversy by bringing influence to bear to hold the tariff bill before the senate.

WHEELER AIMS VIEW

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Slavery League, issued a statement on the matter today.

Wheeler said that the league would not afford to permit this condition, Mr. Cooper added that the shipping board "has no more right to permit liquor to be sold on government-owned ships operated under the American flag than the moonshiner and bootlegger at home has to distribute whisky and rum in his own house."

Declaring that the government could not afford to permit this condition, Mr. Cooper added that the shipping board "has no more right to permit liquor to be sold on government-owned ships operated under the American flag than the moonshiner and bootlegger at home has to distribute whisky and rum in his own house."

ST. LOUIS, June 15.—A petition of a St. Louis bank asking the appointment of a receiver for the estate of the late J. H. Hamon of Arkansas, republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, was denied in federal district court here today by Judge H. L. Williams.

The petition alleged that Frank L. Ketch, administrator, had mismanaged the Hamon estate. Judge Williams held that the evidence presented was insufficient.

Butter Wrapper Starts Romance That 'Slips Up'

Daughter of Wealthy Kansas Is Talked Out of Marriage After Finding Swain

NEW CASTLE, Ill., June 15.—Miss Esther Stewart, 17-year-old high school graduate of Denton, Kan., is on her way back home today after the unsuccessful termination of her romance, begun when she found the name and address of Cecil Thomas of this city on a package of emergency butter shipped from home to the Kansas town.

Her correspondence was started and continued in Miss Stewart, who is said to be the daughter of a wealthy Kansas farmer, coming here last week to visit Thomas.

The girl's parents, however, learning of her plans, wired officials here to stop the wedding and the couple was refused a license. Judge Gause of the circuit court then took a hand in the case and after a conference with the couple, Miss Stewart decided to return to her home.

Most of Transfers in State

Alister Estimates

By the Associated Press State Wire.

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 15.—Estimate that not more than 5,000 socialists and republicans in Oklahoma have cancelled registration for the purpose of registering as democrats for the coming primary was made today by W. C. McAlister, secretary of the state election board. McAlister based his prediction on orders from the county registrars for ballots needed in the primary.

McAlister said that extravagant predictions that wholesale changes in registrations were being made from the socialist and republican ranks to the democratic party were not borne out by reports to the election board.

Most Changes Socialists

The republican transfusion was said not to be large enough to warrant consideration, most of the cancellations being made by socialists. It was thought a few of the socialists would again register under the socialist standard.

McAlister could give no record only 126 changes for the purpose of entering the democratic party and 17 for the republican. Of those cancelled.
